explanatory except that the blooms per day per plant was figured on the whole period of one hundred and twenty days rather than the days that the plants bloomed. We feel that this data will give us those varieties that are consistently heavy bloomers which is what we want in our general park planting. Of course, we still plan on perpetuating the varieties that we have for our show garden.

I am sure that many of the plants we have are misnamed but we have had to go with the names that we secured on the original material. Do you know of a "Check List" that is available whereby we might be able to clear up some of our confusion? I understand that the Hibiscus Society was organized in Florida several years ago and the thought occurs to me that they might have cleared up some of the nomenclature.

Incidentally, plants on last year's "Check" were set out about the first of May and we had blooms on them until about the first of November. We stopped our survey on the twenty-eighth of September because at that time we were taking cuttings and we had cut off most of the blooming wood. Our survey will cover approximately ninety days this year due to a very late spring.

The varieties we received from you are making a good showing and I am sure that some of them will be added to our general planting list".....Henry Walter.

The following letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Tom C. Hudson, Daytona Beach, Florida, from Tomas Vilanova M., Ministerio De Agricultura & Ganaderia, Instituto Salvadoreno De Investigaciones Del Cafe, Santa Tecla, El Salvador, C. A.

"The following is a list of the hibiscus varieties that I made to live out of those you two were so kind as to give me last year when I visited Florida with wife and son:

Gen. McArthur	Mambo
Hudson Single Pink	Diplomat
Julia Agnes Bramble	Dr. DuPuis
Storm Warning	Ruby Edge
Pat Gautier	Indian Summer
John P. Jones	Robin Hood
Claret Pixie	The Shadow
Chief Chapman	Hurricane
Dorothy White	Mildred Rutter
Pat Gauntuy	American Beauty
Emily Freeman	Raspberry Sherbet
Bernice Hudson	Chief Lie
Rosette	B Y 26
Pennyus 250	Emma Gleen
Nina	Nocturne
Hudson Double Yellow	Elga Robinson
Roy McWilliams	Amber Sunset
Moonlight	Prom Girl
Captain Terry	Frank Green
Orchid White	Cindy Lee
Pink Satin	Fire Cracker
Harvest Fire

Most of them have already bloomed and it has been extremely agreable experience when a new one pops open. Have made some cross-pollinations recently and have finally succeeded in having a sufficient number of seed-pods developing. It has been a matter of doing it over and over again.
